VOIR DIRE (CIVIL)

We are about to select a jury for the trial of this case that has been announced ready for trial, and in order to assist the court and the attorneys in that selection process, we are going to proceed with what is called voir dire examination.

The purpose of voir dire examination is to afford the lawyers a full opportunity to inform themselves so that they may responsibly exercise their duties to their respective clients to select a fair and impartial jury for the trial of this particular case. No one wishes to probe unnecessarily into your private affairs, but the lawyers need to know, and the parties are legally entitled to know some information about you. Therefore, please answer each question as fully and as accurately as you can. We need you to give your best, honest, and sincere effort to answer each question. If you are not sure whether you have information called for by the question, tell us what you know or think, i.e., tell us more rather than less. The information you give in response to the court's and the lawyers' questions will be used only by the court and the lawyers to select a qualified jury for the trial of this case.

If any of the information requested is particularly personal to you, let me know and you can tell us about it here at the bench and not in front of everyone else.

I am now going to request the courtroom deputy to call the roll of jurors who have been summoned to this courthouse for a term of jury service through a random selection process, and have been selected through a similar type random selection process to come into this courtroom as a possible jury venire, and who are now seated in the order in which that random selection process put you. As the courtroom deputy calls your name, would you please stand and tell us in a loud voice the information requested on the card each of you have been given.
